* The fund is suitable for use by investors with a long term investment horizon who are comfortable with shorter term volatility as well as the risk associated with a fund mandated to achieve real long term growth.

OBJECTIVE

The MIPLAN IP WORLDWIDE MACRO FUND is a multi-asset portfolio which aims to achieve long term capital growth. The asset allocation of the portfolio will be varied according to the manager's view on the macroeconomic outlook as well as the attractiveness of each asset class and may include equities, bonds, money market instruments, property and derivatives, in both local and foreign markets. The asset allocation of the portfolio will not be restricted in any way.

APPLICATION

- * The Fund's equity bias reflects that, over the longer term, equities offer investors the greatest opportunity for capital growth.
- * Equities however exhibit different risk-return characteristics in different economic conditions.
- * The manager will select stocks and determine the overall allocation to equities based on the global macroeconomic outlook. In selecting equities the manager will seek to identify powerful global trends that impact earnings growth and select such equities from the South African and world's equity markets.
- * The manager will seek companies whose earnings are best positioned to capture the benefits of these drives.

INVESTMENT THEME & REVENUE DRIVERS

Within the current macro environment we remain focused on those companies that are adaptive to a very rapidly changing environment and who are able to survive. Those that don't will unquestionably flounder, with the downside to shareholder value and drawdown risk at asset class level being much greater than many expect. In this context we see companies in the consumer staple, healthcare, technology, consumer discretionary and industrial sectors as the primary drivers of this fund. We see these industries as demonstrating the sort of earnings power we are looking to invest in. In investing in these industries and the companies chosen for the fund, we look to establish a position in the leading players coupled with positions in stocks within the sector that may have a more specialist focus. The assessment of free cash flow, balance sheet strength and margin stability form an important part of the research process. Our assessment of value is based on the degree to which the market has priced in future growth prospects where our investment horizon is typically the next 12 to 36 months. In terms of geographic diversification, our preference at the moment is the US where we see the Fed's policy of accommodative monetary as an underpin to equity values as the economy transitions from central bank support to real earnings growth.

Global financial markets are shifting gears. Forward shifts focus on improved economic growth, improved corporate earnings, low unemployment in developed economies and low borrowing rates in the US, Eurozone and Japan. But an equal number of reverse shifts are developing; rising inflation, monetary tightening, labour constraints (higher wages) and subtle but important shifts in the tectonic plates of politics and trade.

The implications of these opposing forces could be significant for equity markets during 2018. As most commentators settle in to the expectation of higher equity markets at the end of the year we anticipate a few speedbumps along the way. Key to this call is the degree to which yields in US bonds and spreads between corporate and junk have widened. The risk is not to earnings, but rather to rating. Equity price multiples tend to expand slowly but contract quickly. Building in a greater level of downside protection by holding more cash, making use of futures for short term hedging and ensuring a margin of safety in stock value vs expected earnings growth is important at this stage of the market cycle.

An analysis of factors affecting the adherence to the policy objective is contained in the fund manager commentary together with performance as reported. A detailed listing of changes from the previous quarter is available on request from info@miplan.co.za or clientservices@ipmc.co.za
