FUND PERFORMANCE

FUND MANAGEMENT

After a perfectly horrid year in almost all asset classes, December provided some relief in domestic equities which seemed to buck the international trend. That small relief did not, however, compensate for the extremely poor returns for domestic Financial (-4 percent) and Industrial (-17 percent) stocks. Domestic bonds returned 9 percent while cash came in at just under 7 percent leaving little in the way for the delivery of real returns. We have maintained a defensive position throughout most of this period by holding an overweight position in domestic bonds, foreign equities and domestic cash. Inflation-linked bond exposure was kept to a minimum which served your portfolio well as the asset class returned just more than zero percent. Domestic equities were hedged through short futures position which remained through to year end. While we do see value emerging in the domestic equity market, we note that it may take a while for global equity markets and the US, in particular, to find support after recent declines. Our asset allocation positioning thus remains cautious but opportunistic.

An analysis of factors affecting the adherence to the policy objective is contained in the fund manager commentary together with performance as reported. A detailed listing of changes from the previous quarter is available on request from info@miplan.co.za or clientservices@ipmc.co.za
